

Tutoring Overview for Georgia and Farrah

Elijah Borjon

Structure & Frequency

- Once per week, in person
- Initial structure:
 - 30 minutes with Georgia
 - 30 minutes with Farrah
(back-to-back, individualized)
- Other options for structure:
 - 20 minutes combined (games, applied concepts, discussion)
 - 20 minutes individual per child
- Structure remains flexible and responsive to what works best for them.

Availability

I'm available for weekly sessions during:

- Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, Friday: 4:30–8:00 PM
- Saturday mornings: 9:00 AM - 12:00 PM

We can find a consistent recurring time that works best for your family :)

Learning Philosophy & Approach

My role is best described as a confidence-builder and mentor, while also filling academic gaps that school settings sometimes miss.

Rather than replicating school instruction, I:

- Build strong math fundamentals independently
- Translate existing knowledge (including BRIDGES concepts) into real-world, practical applications
- Focus on intuition, reasoning, and confidence, not speed or memorization
- Keep learning engaging, human, and responsive to each child, developing a connection with students that is real and personal

Georgia and Farrah are both capable students, so the goal is to preserve and strengthen their love of learning while making sure they feel prepared and confident moving forward, especially with middle school in mind.

Subject Integration

While math will be the primary focus, I will also integrate:

- Literacy skills (explaining thinking, reading problems carefully, communicating ideas)
- Light science reasoning (patterns, measurement, observation, real-world problem solving)

This helps reinforce foundational skills across all subjects without overloading them or turning sessions into “more school.”

First Session

The first session will be intentionally low-pressure and relationship-focused.

- Goal: Get to know Georgia and Farrah as learners
- Through games and conversation (not testing), i’ll see how they learn best
- Parents are encouraged to be present
- I’m open to a park or outdoor setting if that feels comfortable, especially to help learning feel relaxed and engaging

Progress Updates

- Monthly written progress update for each child (strengths, focus areas, confidence shifts, next steps)
- Ongoing informal check-ins as needed

Pricing

Family Rate: $80 per weekly session

This includes:

- In-person tutoring for both children
- Lesson planning and preparation for each child
- Custom materials and activities
- Monthly written progress updates
- Travel time

I prefer a simple family rate to keep things clear and consistent, and I'm always happy to revisit the structure down the line if adjustments would better support your family.

Next Steps

- Confirm a weekly time that works
- Schedule the first “get to know you” session
- Plan structure after 2–3 weeks based on what we observe
